

Student Managing Editors

Jacklyn Alodia Cheely
Virginia Wesleyan University
Class of 2019

Jake Q. Stokke
Virginia Wesleyan University
Class of 2019

Faculty Advisor

Eric Michael Mazur, PhD
Gloria & David Furman Professor of Judaic Studies
Religion, Law, & Politics Fellow, Center for the Study of Religious Freedom
Virginia Wesleyan University

Faculty Advisory Board

Greta Austin, PhD
University of Puget Sound

Donald R. Davis, Jr., PhD
University of Texas, Austin

Jeffrey A. Brauch, JD
Executive Director, Center for Global
Justice, Human Rights & the Rule of Law
Regent University School of Law

Jenna Gray-Hildenbrand, PhD
Middle Tennessee State University

Kathleen M. Moore, PhD
University of California, Santa Barbara

Dena Davis, JD, PhD
Presidential Endowed Chair in Health
Lehigh University

Tisa Wenger, PhD
Yale University

Religio et Lex is produced under the auspices of the Center for the Study of Religious Freedom, and has been supported by generous grants from Virginia Wesleyan University and an anonymous donor. All opinions stated herein are solely those of the authors, and do not necessarily reflect those of the journal, the Center, or the University.

SUBMISSIONS

Religio et Lex: Contemplations on Religion & Law – an on-line liberal arts journal under the auspices of the Center for the Study of Religious Freedom at Virginia Wesleyan University – invites submissions of quality papers on any aspect of the intersection of religion(s) and law, including the experience of religious adherents under secular legal systems and examinations of religious legal systems (Canon, Halakhah, Sharia, etc.).

Papers accepted for publication will be placed in one of three sections:

- High-quality undergraduate student research papers, including papers submitted for undergraduate classes or independent studies;
- High-quality original research papers, from all disciplines (all areas of the liberal arts, law, and theology), including papers submitted for seminars or conferences, and derivatives from longer works (theses, dissertations); and
- Reflective analyses on religion & law pedagogy or experience from all disciplines (all areas of the liberal arts, law, and theology) – including case studies and discussions of classroom issues specific to the topic of religion(s) and law – or papers written by practitioners in the field of religion and law – including attorneys advocating on behalf of religious adherents or issues of concern to members of a religious community, as well as those working in specialized religious contexts such as religious courts.

Papers of approximately 8,000 words should be submitted as email attachments (in WORD) to the journal's Faculty Advisor (Eric Mazur: emazur@vwu.edu). Please indicate institutional affiliation and education level. Undergraduate papers should be submitted with a faculty letter of recommendation; graduate and faculty papers will be subject to appropriate peer review.

Not a law review, Religio et Lex is dedicated to bringing together all disciplines from across the liberal arts. Submission of articles that address any aspect of religion and law are welcome. All opinions stated in the journal are those of the authors, and do not necessarily reflect those of the Center or the University.

CONTENTS

IN THIS ISSUE . . .	Eric Michael Mazur	1
UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT ARTICLE
Loyalty and Morality: Religious Minorities in U.S. Electoral Politics	Gabriel DeJoseph	5
PEER-REVIEWED ARTICLES
Corporate Freedom of Religion and the Two Leviathans	Ivan Strenski	19
[In process]		--
REFLECTIVE ANALYSIS
[In process]		